APPLICATION
AMY J. JOHNSON STUDY ABROAD AWARD

Dr. Amy Johnson graduated from Emory University in 1991 with a double major in Middle Eastern Studies and Political Science. After earning her Ph.D. in Modern Middle Eastern History from Harvard University, Amy joined the faculty of Berry College in Rome, Georgia. Following Amy's untimely death in December 2004, her parents, Dennis and Paula Johnson, established this award. As an undergraduate, Amy distinguished herself as a bright young scholar of the Middle East, who showed remarkable commitment to promoting cross-cultural understanding. This award commemorates Amy's legacy at Emory by providing support to students who share Amy's passion for understanding the peoples and cultures of the Middle East.

PARTICULARS:

1. The annual award, up to $1,000, is to defray expenses arising from studying for a semester or longer in the Middle East.
2. Applicants must be undergraduate female students in good academic standing.
3. Preference will be given to students who plan to study in Egypt, and to students who are majoring in Middle Eastern and South Asian Studies.

TO APPLY:

1. Complete the short form below and use it as the cover page of your application.
2. Include a letter of application which (a) details your undergraduate course of study to the point of application and (b) explains how study abroad in the Middle East will further your academic efforts.
