MESAS Special Event

A Celebration in Honor of Oded Borowski,
Professor of Biblical Archaeology and Hebrew

Thursday, March 29, 2018
4:00pm
Candler School of Theology, Room 360
Emory University

Since arriving at Emory in 1977 to establish the Hebrew program, and becoming the founding faculty member of what is now the Department of Middle Eastern and South Asian Studies, Oded Borowski has earned the respect and admiration of faculty, staff and students across the university.

Widely recognized as an expert on daily life in biblical times, his depth of knowledge and experience as a researcher, teacher and administrator, his service to the profession, his leadership of archaeological digs, particularly at Tell Halif in Israel, his many publications, honors and awards, all speak to a highly productive scholarly career.

We gather on this occasion to celebrate Oded’s accomplishments and to express appreciation for his service at Emory for more than 40 years, as he looks forward to retirement. With special thanks to Tam Institute for Jewish Studies for co-sponsoring the event.
